

What Makes a Good Learner?

Select those that you believe to be true of a good learner.

Learning from mistakes.

Knowing all the right answers.

Trying different approaches to a task.

Asking lots of questions.

Asking someone else for the answers.

Finishing the task before anyone else.

Using books and other resources to assist with a task.

Listening to feedback on how to improve.

Sticking to the things you are good at.

Explaining what you have learnt to someone else.

Sharing ideas with others.

My Next Challenge

Think about something coming up that might be a challenge for you. It could be a piano exam, an important football match, a reading comprehension in class, running in the cross-country race or starting a new club or new school.

Remember, we are all different so what might not seem challenging to you, might be a big challenge for someone else in the class.

My Next Challenge

My Next Challenge

Think about any challenges you have coming up in the near future. Perhaps there is something at school that might be a challenge for you or something outside of school - perhaps at a club you go to or lessons you do. Choose a challenge to write in the centre of the flower, then add lots of things you are going to try when it comes to facing that challenge.
